

How Do You Want Your Management Training?

82% of first time Managers prefer live Instructor led workshops
Chief Learning Officer Magazine

Humans crave interaction, and often learn better in an in-person environment.

These interactions might contain micro-lessons but they can deliver massive results.

U.S. companies with <100 Employees; Managers are trained 24 minutes/year

Leading In Real Time
 Three-hour workshops that were designed around the skills of managing people
Descriptions

U.S. companies with 100-500 Employees; Managers are trained 12 minutes/year
Department of Labor

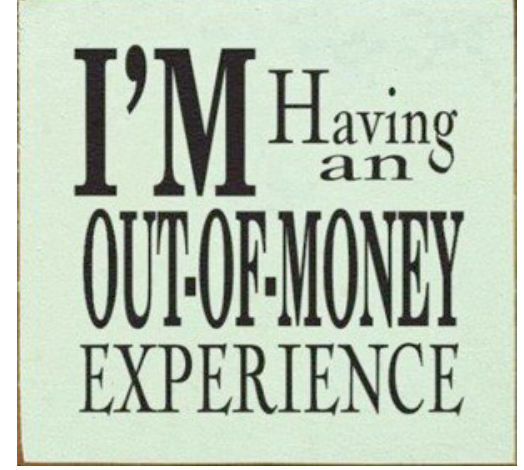

Did you know that US Tech firms spend an average of $1,847 per manager per year developing management skills?
Bersin by Deloitte
However, this is still less than is spent on their desk, chair and computer.

Over confidence in your managers' capabilities can get in the way of investing in these crucial employees.

We'll even license our workshops and teach you to deliver them.

With innovative and clever pricing, we are great at making a dime look like a dollar...
 Ask how we can help you!

What All Three Generations (Boomers, GenX, Millennials) Want to See In Training

- 1. Make It Personal
Mentoring/Coaching, Classroom Training, Team Collaboration
- 2. Train to Retain
7 out of 10 surveyed cite job related development as a retention tool
- 3. Improve Learning Technologies
70% state that Corporate L&D Technology falls short of expectations
CED Magazine

“The way people want to learn today can best be described in one word, fast.”

Josh Bersin

ACCELERATE

Home of short workshops that work

Leading In Real Time
 Three-hour workshops that were designed around the needs of busy people who manage people
Want to know more? email: johnboring@accelerate-ld.com